Computer Test Patterns

These 100% colour bars are white, yellow, cyan, green, magenta, red, blue and black.

Colour Bars

The grey scale consists of a full screen linear staircase signal with 8 equal steps of grey from black to white:
0%, 14%, 29%, 43%, 57%, 72%, 86%, 100% (nominal)

Grey Scale

The crosshatch has 8 (vga) or 10 (s-vga) horizontal and 11 (vga) or 14 (s-vga) vertical lines producing square boxes to show the linearity of the monitor. Also used to correct convergence.

Crosshatch

The dots are extremely useful for ensuring good focus and convergence. Ideal for use with projectors.

Dots

This 100% pattern consists of a pure red screen filling the absolute limits of the monitor picture. Used to correct colour purity.

Red Purity

This 100% pattern consists of a pure white screen filling the absolute limits of the monitor picture. Used as source of peak white.

White Purity

A 7 MHz frequency burst shows the resolution of the screen and points out any echoing problems in poorly wired cables.

Frequency Burst
